

Aix-Marseille University AMSE PhD program 'On the job' PhD track

2023 admission procedure

The AMSE 'On the job' PhD track allows PhD candidates to write a PhD dissertation while in employment. The ultimate objective of candidates enrolled in this track is to quickly and successfully achieve high quality academic research that is of interest for their professional career.

- Functioning
- 'On the job' PhD candidates are formally enrolled at Aix-Marseille University under the continuing education regime (formation continue). The standard duration of the PhD is 4 years.
 - 'On the job' PhD candidates are not requested to be physically present at AMSE, but they must spend two weeks per year in Aix-en-Provence or Marseille. Detailed information about the functioning of the program can be found on the program's webpage. Tuition fees amount to about € 2,000/year.

- Eligibility criteria
- The applicant should have left higher education since at least 3 years upon enrolment in the program.
 - The applicant must hold a full-time job with at least a 3-year ongoing contract upon enrolment or be able to demonstrate that she/he will likely hold a stable occupation over the same period.
 - The applicant must be employed as an economist or use economic analysis in her/his job.
 - The applicant must have achieved a first class standing in a Master in economics equivalent to the AMSE Master in economics.

Application procedure Applications are welcome and will be considered all year round. Formal enrollment in the program typically takes place in fall. Applicants are encouraged to apply between February and April.

Step 1 – Pre-application

- Detailed CV (if the applicant does not hold a master degree in economics, she/he must provide all documents that justify her/his qualification for doing a PhD in economics) and cover letter.
- Proofs of employment status.
- A short research project (max 8 pages).
- Detailed transcripts of master-level grades.
- Letter of support by the applicant's employer, to be sent directly and confidentially to the AMSE PhD program secretariat.
- Two reference letters, to be sent directly and confidentially to the AMSE PhD program secretariat.

All documents need to be sent to the AMSE PhD program secretariat in PDF format. The subject of the mail must be "YOUR_NAME – AMSE On the job PhD Pre-application". Applicants will be notified of the outcome of their pre-application within 2 months.

Step 2 – Preparation of the final research project

Applicants whose pre-application has been approved and whose projects received attention by at least one AMSE faculty member are invited to contact the latter and to work with her/him on the final research project.

Step 3 – Final application

- All the documents included in the pre-application package, except the short research project.
- Detailed research project (max 20 pages, including a very detailed agenda).
- Letter of support by the AMSE supervisor, to be sent directly to the AMSE PhD program secretariat.

All documents must be sent to the AMSE PhD program secretariat in PDF format. The subject of the mail must be "YOUR_NAME – AMSE On the job PhD Final application". Applicants will be notified of the outcome of their final application within a month.
